

Second Thoughts About You

You need to know...
There's something I need to say...

Its hard to explain it, but...
I had second thoughts about you today.

And...

You may not want to hear this,
Its not easy to communicate...

But I'll try.

As I walked away from your door,
After giving you a good-bye kiss,
It struck me.

My first thoughts of you were of how beautiful you are in every way from the outside, but...
On second thought, as I begin to see your inner self, I understand where your beauty truly resides.

My first thoughts of you were of how I enjoyed watching you smile and making you laugh, but...
On second thought, now I enjoy watching you from across a room and how you light up the world around you.

My first thoughts of you were of how I wanted to win your attention and affection, but...
On second thought, I find myself hoping that I'm ever deserving of someone so unbelievably special.

My first thoughts of you were of, I admit it, a lustful, intimate nature, but...
On second thought, my mind involuntarily conceives the potentials of a lifetime of joy in holding your hand.

So... There you go.
I just thought you should know these second thoughts I've been having, and...
How they are so much better than the first.